Waterfront Families and Jobs Count on Your Help

Despite the undeniable success of the waterfront industrial community and its tremendous heritage in San Diego, developers are increasing pressure to change the very nature of the waterfront and neighboring Barrio Logan with new projects that focus on tourism and expensive residential development. The WWG is ready to fight for waterfront employment, its economic and environmental benefits, and the significant role these businesses play in the San Diego community. YOU CAN HELP.

WWG is a coalition of water-dependent businesses committed to preserving the industry's positive contributions – including family-supporting jobs – to the region's economy, security and environment. The group is administered by the San Diego Port Tenants Association in cooperation with the Port of San Diego and the AFL/CIO.

There is strength in numbers. To protect jobs, the Barrio community and the long, beneficial heritage of maritime industry, we need your help. Please sign up below and return this sheet, or go online and www.workingwaterfrontgroup.com to sign up. We'll keep in touch and tell you how you can help.
